JUDGE EDWARDS SETTLES PAVING OF LIBERTYVILLE

Libertyville's long drawn-out fight over the paying of Milwankee avenue is settled at last: In circuit court at Wankegan last Thursday morning Judge Edwards, acting as arbiter, suggested that the objectors and the village agree to accept the sum of $5,000 as public benefit, which was finally decided upon.

It was also decided to put the matter of financing the public benefit part of the improvement to a bond fasue, because that would require an election, which might result in the project being defeated. Instead the amount of public benefit will be financed by the Issuance of certificates, which will be taken up by the two retired as convenient for the village.

CHAPTER I.—Answering an advertice-ment calling for a young man willing to engage in service of danger, Marthow West, ex-service man just returned from Trance, where he had been captain of engineers, meets Natalle Coolidge, writer of the advertisement, and without being instructed as to his probable duties, is engaged by her, and that same ovening introduced to her friends as her flance.

CHAPTER II.—That night, in the Coolinge home, West is startled by the appearance in his room of a young woman, whom he takes to be Natalle, but who escapee before he can be sure. Next morning Natalle tolls West she has been troubled by some woman, apparently her double, who has been impersonating her.

CHAPTER III.—Percival Coolidge, Natalic's uncle and guardian, appearance as Natalic's flance, and the teeling of antagonism is mutual. Natalic, Coolidge, and West plan a visit of charity to a poor and remote section of the city.

CHAPTER IV.—Leaving West in the car, Natalie and Coolidge enter a small cottage, remaining a length of time which causes him some uneasiness. Before they return, West secures information which leads him to believe Coolidge is deceiving Natalie, and has ulterior motives.

CHAPTER V.—On the party's return to the Coolidge home, Natalie informs West the has been mistaken in her suspicious concerning her "double," and that she has no further need for his services. West is astounded, but helpless. He lenves,

CHAPTER VI.—On his way out of the grounds, West hears a revolver shot, and investigates. He finds Percival Coolidge dead, apparently a suicide. The inquest so determines. In the city West is visited by Sexton, an old servant of the Coolidges. Hexton tells him he has been abruptly dismissed, for no apparent reason. He gives it as his belief that Coolidge was murdered, and about convinces West ha is right.

CHAPTER VIL-Sexton has overheard presence immediately. He gives an address, and with Sexton, West, his suspicions of things not being right strengthened by his tearning that Coolidge had lied about the reason for the trip to the cottage, visits the place. It is a disreputable saloon.

It was not until the fellowing day that reason began to reassert user, and he succeeded in marshalling the fucts of the case more clearly in his own mind. He even began to doubt and questlen his own testlmeny, yet, before he reached any real conclusion, one of the club servants approached his chair,

It was Sexton, twirling his hat nerve that the previous party had remained ously in his hands, and still standing irresolutely la the middle of the floor. As sight of West he took a hasty step forward, eager to explain the cause of hls presence,

"You'll- pardon me, sir," he burst forth in apology, "But I must see you, !

"And since then Percival Coolidge had full charge of the estate?"

"Practically, yes, sir; there was an other trustee, but he died; and then, as I understand, Miss Natalis had some funds of her own."

West took a clgar from his pocket, and ilt it. Although not altogether clear in his own mind, he had begun to see light.

CHAPTER VII

Against a Stone Wall. Was this discovery anything to him? What difference could it make whether Percival Coolidge had died by his own hand, or been treacherously shot from ambush? How would it benefit Natalle Coelldge to have the truth revealed? And, If it would henefit her, why should he devete his time and laber to such an effort? She had cast him off, thrown him aside; her affairs had no further interest for him. Let her lawyer take care of them. These were West's first thoughts.

All true, yet this state of mind brought no satisfaction. He was interested; he could not escape his first impressions of the girl, or drive from him a desire to serve her, whether she wished it, or not. Sho might, indeed, be in equal danger from an assassin. He could not determine this until the learned the cause of the slaying of Percival. Then, on the other hand. suppose some one else's suspicions were also areused. Who would they naturally look to as guilty of this lierrible crime? There was but one answer-Natalle Coelldge. She was seemingly the only person to directly benefit by his death. All these considerations arged him, on, overcame his could tell the way she walked she doubt and ludecision. Then he desired to learn the truth himself, His eyes rested en Sexton's unxlous face.

"I've been thinking it over," he admitted quietly, "and I guess it is up to you and me to find out what this him, and returned to the taxl.

"Yes, sir," hesitatingly, "You-you don't think it was Miss Natalle, sir?" "Ne, I do not, Sexton. I linve my own reasons for saying that. Xet these facts you have just related, but naturally she is the one to be first they fit in nicely with some observa- suspected. Do you know anything?"

Joseph Turner, Sr., one of the aged and highly estcemed residents of Fridny, Feb. 2, 1923,

He was born in Somersetshire, England, June 24, 1851. In the year 1874, in company with his sister, Mrs. Mary Gardinier, now a resident of Grayslake, he journed to the United States. They first settled in the vicinity of Antioch, later coming to the community where they have spent the intter years. For the most part Mr. Turner has been a farmer, although, for the past several years he has done nothing, having accumulated enough of this world's goods, so that he and his family could enjoy some of the luxuries of life without toiling. He was also a director in one of the Antioch banks for a number of years.

In 1878 he was united in the Holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Rose Hook, a resident and neighbor in this vicinity, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Radney Gilbert at Fort Hill. To this happy union seven children were born, as follows: Mrs. A. B. Combs, Round Lake; Mrs L. H. Coulspo, Elkhurn, Wis.; Dr. John Turner, Washington, D. Preserve the Home Ties

Breaking home ties often means pain and sorrow, both to those who go and to those who stay. But with the telephone at your elbow day and night, home ties need not be broken.

In a short time, usually a few minutes, you can reach your home by the wire route from almost any city, town, or village in the United States no matter how distant.

A short talk with the loved ones at home and the home feeling is established once more. And how it does please the home folks!

"Station-to-station" service is a money and time saver. It is explained in the current issue of the Telephone Directory.

Antiech, Illinois. Dear Sir:

Thinking that seme of my friends back home might bo interested in knowing something about the Hawaiian Islands, I take this means to give them some first hand information, and my experiences in the army.

When I salled from San Francisco. on March 9, 1921, on the U. S. Army service in Hawnii, I had no realization of what the future held in store for me. I, like a majority of the people of the Untied States, had a vague iden that Hawail was a tropical country, inhabited by cannibals or at best a group of half civilized people who had never been abla to keep abreast of the times, but imagine my surprise when upon my arrival, instead grass huts and Hula girls in native costume, I found a city, of many
